ANOTHER JAUNT TO ISTHMUS OF PANAMA

Nashville and New Orleans Business Men Started From Crescent City Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New Orleans, La., April 20.—Another large party of American business men started from this city today to see how things are progressing on the big ditch at Panama. Under the joint auspices of the Nashville Board of Trade and the New Orleans Progressive Union several scores of representatives of the commercial bodies of the Southern and Middle West states sailed today on the steamship Ellis of the United Fruit Company, specially chartered for the trip. The object of the trip is to give the commercial men the opportunity of inspecting the canal work and meeting the merchants of the isthmus. The itinerary calls for four days on the isthmus, most of which will be spent at Panama. From Port Limon the tourists will make a trip inland to San Jose, the capital of Costa Rica.

UNHAPPY BIRTHDAY OF ROUMANIAN KING

Most Despondent Monarch of Europe Sees Approach of Death—Many Misfortunes.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Bucharest, April 20.—King Charles of Roumania, probably the unhappiest monarch in all Europe, was sixty-eight years old today. The king is broken in health and crushed in spirit. In what are generally believed to be the closing days of his reign he is called upon to face a revolt of his subjects and to see in the future a possible regency over his kingdom. The troubles of King Charles are not lightened by the knowledge that his nephew and heir, Prince Ferdinand, is a victim of consumption, which must in a very few years at most carry him off. This will bring to the throne Prince Carol, but as this lad is under 10 years of age his mother will have to act for him as queen regent. This period is what Roumanians fear. Crown Princess Marie, who is a niece of King Edward VII, makes no secret of her intense partisanship for the English. Under these conditions it amounts to almost a certainty that with the power in the hands of Princess Marie the little kingdom and its 6,000,000 patriotic inhabitants would come under English domination.

ARCHBISHOP FARLEY SIXTY-FIVE TODAY

Is Native of Ireland Like Many Other High Roman Catholic Prelates in America.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, April 20.—Archbishop John M. Farley received many congratulations today on the occasion of his sixty-fifth birthday. Archbishop Farley, like many of the Roman Catholic prelates in America, is a native of Ireland and he received his early education in that country. He came to the United States before the civil war and located in New York. He entered St. John's College, and was graduated from that institution in 1866. He completed his theological studies at the American College in Rome and after his ordination returned to New York and was appointed assistant pastor at St. Peter's Church, Brighton, S. I. In 1872 he became secretary to Cardinal McCloskey. In 1892 Mr. Farley became coadjutor Bishop of New York and upon the death of Archbishop Corrigan he was elevated to the head of the archdiocese, which is second to none in importance in America.

Swept Big Area
The flames swept an area of a hundred square acres clean in less than two hours. The native refugees are now quartered in schools and other public buildings. Many are camping in open places. The loss is some two hundred thousand dollars in gold. There were no casualties.

NO RIDING WITH THE RURAL MAIL CARRIER

Uncle Sam Says That No One Can Travel with His Boys in Gray Except Inspectors.

One of the interesting bits of government regulation that may be new to many of the residents of Rock county is that no person, except a government inspector, can ride with one of the Rural mail carriers. It appears that complaints have been made to Postmaster Clarke at Milton that his carriers refused rides to persons on their routes and for the benefit of the men traveling out of his office he sent the following to the Gazette. As indirectly affects the entire county it is given prominence. The regulation is as follows:
The order of the P. O. department, under date of June 8, 1904: "Rural carriers are required to permit post-office inspectors or other duly accredited agents of the postoffice department, to accompany them on their regular trips over their routes. They must not carry other passengers nor permit any person, other than authorized postal officials, to ride with them or to have access to the mails." The fact that carriers from other offices violate the instruction will not excuse carriers for any violation of orders.

GENTENARIANS WILL WED

J. B. BUNDREN, AGED 101, IS TO MARRY WOMAN 100-YEARS OLD.

Will Travel to England to Get Bride Whom He Courted in Their Youth.

St. Louis, April 20.—Announcement was made Friday that on August 26 next John B. Bundren, who on April 1 was 101 years old, will be united in marriage to Miss Rose McGuire, who is almost 100 years of age. The wedding will take place on Mr. Bundren's estate near Tatesville, Tenn. He has been visiting relatives in St. Louis for several weeks and has just returned to Tennessee. The announcement reveals a romance. Bundren and Miss McGuire were sweethearts in Tennessee in their youth. Her parents, of English descent, would not give consent for their marriage, and finally returned to England, taking their daughter along. Bundren went to California and acquired considerable wealth. He never married. From California he returned to Tennessee and bought his birthplace, near Tatesville. He decided to hold a reunion of old friends on his estate this year and sent out numerous invitations. No long ago he received a letter from Miss McGuire, who is still unmarried. Correspondence followed and he renewed his offer of marriage and was accepted. The date for the wedding and the reunion of friends has been set for August 26, on the bride's birthday anniversary, when she will be 100 years old.

PUNISHMENT FOR SERIOUS PRANK NARROWLY AVOIDED

Lawrence Griffin and Leo Hogan Who Threw Overripe Fruit into Lincoln School Must "Walk Turn-Key" Henceforth.

Lawrence Griffin and Leo Hogan, two mischievous youngsters against whom Truant Officer S. C. Burdham lodged a complaint for throwing overripe potatoes and bananas in an open window of the Lincoln school on Wednesday, appeared in municipal court this morning to answer to the charge of assault and battery on Mary Doran and Julia Daley, the little girls who were hit by the missiles. Master Hogan promptly pleaded guilty and gave his confederates away in his recital of the circumstances, so that Master Griffin found it advisable to amend his plea of "not guilty." Judge Field suspended sentence in both instances and adjourned the cases to November 1, warning the boys that a repetition of such pranks or any other misdemeanor on the part of the culprits during the intervening time would cause them to be promptly brought before him and sentenced to terms in one of the state's reformatory institutions.

Claimed He Sold Stuff in Janesville—Sheriff Raids Cockfight—Dirty Ice Cream.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., April 20.—Alexander Ross, a pugilist, was arrested today charged with having been implicated in the theft of jewelry, razors and small articles from "east side" homes. Janesville is among the cities he is said to have disposed of part of his swag.

RAIDS COCKFIGHT

Early this morning the sheriff raided a building where two hundred men and boys were witnessing a series of cockfights. Several arrests were made and many persons were injured in the rush of the participants to get away when the sheriff arrived. Despite a careful search of the building, the sheriff was unable to find any of the birds used, although in the pit was a quantity of blood and chicken feathers showing fights had been held.

Dirty Ice Cream
Upon complaint of a small boy who claimed the ice cream he bought from a "Hurdy Gurdy" wagon was dirty, the city health officers made a raid on the ice cream factories. "KISSING DAY" OBSERVED WITH ANCIENT CUSTOMS

Hungerford, Town In Berkshire, England, Enjoys Holiday That Has Survived Since "Ye Olden Times."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, April 20.—Today was observed as "Kissing day" at Hungerford, the Lancastrian borough on the western borders of Berkshire. This is an annual custom in the little town during the period of "Hock-tide." The Hock-tide feast traces its origin back to the days when "Old John o' Gaunt" lived in and lorded over the district. He gave the town many special privileges for various reasons, and a large number of these it still enjoys. Zeal in the observance of the "kissing customs" has of late been rather diminished, owing to an inquiry of the charity commissioners and an official hint that there would be a reforming scheme in the administration of the town, derived from the fishery and commons which John o' Gaunt presented to the town.

A SEPARATE MINING SCHOOL IS FOOLISH

Proposed Appropriation of $30,000 a Year Entirely Inadequate—Twenty Times as Much Necessary.

Madison, Wis., April 20.—The proposed appropriation of $30,000 a year for the establishment of an independent state mining school at Platteville was shown to be utterly inadequate at the hearing of bill 245 before the legislative committee on education this afternoon. The cost of the Michigan School of Mines at Houghton was shown to be $538,501, and the annual cost of maintenance $93,918. The cost of the plant of the Colorado School of Mines cost $300,000 and necessitates an annual appropriation of $54,486.25 to maintain it. If Wisconsin is to establish and maintain a mining school that will rank with the Michigan School of Mines, it will be necessary to appropriate $622,478, or over twenty times the amount proposed in the bill. If the state of Wisconsin maintains an independent mining school, it should not be inferior to schools of other states. Over $500,000 would therefore be necessary to establish an adequate plant, and about $100,000 annually would be necessary to maintain it. To appropriate $30,000 a year as is proposed would be to handicap seriously the new undertaking from the start.

Needless Duplication of Plants.
The establishment of an independent mining and mining engineering school at Platteville or any other place in the state would make necessary the establishment and equipment of departments and laboratories in geology, chemistry, physics, and the other basic sciences, as well as expensive laboratories, testing plants, and machine shops in engineering. All this equipment, it was pointed out, would be a duplication of what the state already has at the University of Wisconsin. Since Platteville is but 60 miles from the state university, it was urged that it would be a waste of state money to appropriate $500,000 and then $100,000 annually to duplicate a plant already provided with strong departments and well equipped in geology, chemistry, and the other sciences, as well as the large and well established plant of the college of engineering.

Cheaper Plan at Hand
Attention was called to the fact that eighty-five per cent of the work required in mining courses at independent schools is already offered at the university of Wisconsin. The remaining fifteen per cent necessary to give a complete course in mining and mining engineering can be provided by the expenditure of an amount not exceeding $10,000 per annum for two or three years. The university budget for next year, it was pointed out, already provides for a professor of mining engineering out of the present university funds. When the course in mining engineering, which has been in existence in the university for a number of years and has already proved successful, is completed at a very small additional cost, it will be equal and indeed superior to those of any independent mining schools because of the fact that the entire university is available for instruction in the fundamental sciences allied to mining. The course in mining engineering in the state university is being steadily developed, and the number of students is increasing each year.

Marks Change in Policy
The most fundamental point urged against the proposed establishment of a mining school at Platteville is the radical change in the policy hitherto maintained in Wisconsin of keeping all of the higher education together. It has been possible for Wisconsin to maintain higher education of the best grade, at a smaller cost than that of many other states because all of the state colleges have been combined in one place. Instead of duplicating faculties, libraries and laboratories by maintaining a college of letters and science in one place, an agricultural college in another, a college of engineering in another, and a college of law in another place as some states have done, Wisconsin prudently united all college and professional work in one place.

Present Plan Economical
As showing the remarkable economy of concentration in university education, attention was called to the fact that the complete budget for all courses in the college of engineering this year is $101,730, which is were blown early this morning by the town crier, attired in a new livery for the occasion. Then the "tutti-men" went forth with florally decorated staves, their duty being to kiss all the ladies whom they met, and demand a penny from every male householder they called upon. Meanwhile the Hock-tide jury were meeting in the town hall for the transaction of more serious business, appointing a constable, who is coroner and mayor combined, ale tasters, leather sealers, keepers of the keys of the common coffer, and other ancient officials whose duties are more picturesque than practical. This concluded all met at luncheon, following which bowls of hot punch, brewed from a Lancastrian receipt, were introduced, and, with churchwarden pipes the remainder of the festival day was pleasantly passed.

PULLING TOGETHER

HOME MERCHANTS SHOULD PATRONIZE EACH OTHER.

KEEP DOLLAR GOING 'ROUND

Do Not Let It Escape by Unnecessarily Sending It to the City—Set an Example to Others.

The community that will pull together, that will work as one man for the general interests, will find an abundance of prosperity.

And working together means the spending of the dollars of the community within the community. Nor does it mean only that the farmer, the mechanic, the doctor, the preacher, the editor must spend their money at home, but it means also that the merchant must do the same thing. It means that you, Mr. Dry Goods Merchant, must patronize your neighbor, Mr. Furniture Dealer, when you want furniture. It means that you, Mr. Furniture Dealer, must patronize your neighbor, Mr. Dry Goods Merchant, when you want dry goods. It means that the groceryman must patronize the home implement dealer when he wants a new wagon, and the implement dealer must buy his groceries in the home town. It means that whether Mr. Butcher, Mr. Grocer, Mr. Dry Goods Merchant, Mr. Furniture Dealer, Mr. Hardware Man, or whoever it may be, that intends to a profit. The groceryman buys a dollar's worth of dry goods; and the dry goods merchant makes a profit. The dry goods merchant patronizes the dentist, and the dentist makes a profit, and the dentist buys butter and produce from the farmer and the farmer makes a profit. So as the dollar goes around and around a community each man into whose keeping it comes makes a profit on the handling of it, and the dollar grows into two. But what would have happened had the farmer taken that dollar to buy his groceries of the mail-order house, or the groceryman sent it to the city for his dry goods? The trust organization of the community would have been broken, that dollar would have ceased to earn profits for the people of the community, but would have been earning dollars for the city into which it was sent.

It is the dollar that is spent at home that makes the savings deposits of the home bank grow; that increases the wealth of the community, and decreases the tax rate. Buying at home means saving the community, but Mr. Merchant, do not preach this trade at home doctrine unless you practice it. You must buy your stock of merchandise in the city to be sure, but aside from what is spent for your stock of merchandise, see to it that every dollar it is possible to keep at home remains in the community. Keep them circulating among your neighbors, and they will make money for you as well as for them; they will build the home community, and make of it a prosperous community in which your business

DISCUSS AMERICAN COLONIAL POLICY

ACADEMY OF POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE MEETS.

JAMES BRYCE IS HEARD

Tells of England's Colonial Difficulties—Prof. Brumbaugh Suggests Establishment of a Great Insular School.

Philadelphia, April 20.—The American Academy of Political and Social Science began its eleventh annual meeting here Friday, the general topic for discussion this year being American colonial policy and administration.

The meeting has been divided into four sessions. At Friday afternoon's session, at which Prof. James T. Young of the University of Pennsylvania presided, there was a discussion of the industrial and financial problems in the dependencies of the United States, and at the evening meeting "American Colonial Policies" was taken up.

The principal speakers at the night session were Ambassador Bryce, who spoke on "Some Difficulties in Colonial Government Encountered by Great Britain and How They Have Been Met," and United States Senator Beveridge on "The Development of a Colonial Policy for the United States."

Saturday's "education," social, legal and political problems of the dependencies will claim the attention of the academy.

Suggests Insular School.

One of the interesting suggestions made at the afternoon session during the discussion of an educational policy for Spanish American civilization was that, by Prof. Martin G. Brumbaugh, former commissioner of education in Porto Rico, and now superintendent of schools in Philadelphia. He urged the immediate consideration by the higher institutions of learning in the United States of the establishment somewhere midway between North and South America, preferably Porto Rico, of a great insular school, its faculty to be made up from the United States and from the South American countries and its pupils to come from all over the Latin civilization. This school, he said, should be a clearing house of ideas and a central point from which should emanate the finest formulation and expression of the best thought of the experienced minds of the continent.

"It has been long my feeling," he said, "that the great institutions of America should in some way combine and, for the sake of the service which they can render to mankind, maintain such an institution of learning." He said the problem of education for Spanish America is first of all a problem of language, but it should not be overlooked that while these people are acquiring the symbols of a new language, they should not neglect the perfecting of their own, because "a man is as many times a man as he has languages in which to think and in which to express his thought."

Problems of Philippines.

Banking, currency and finance of the Philippines were discussed by Henry C. Ide, former governor general of these islands.

Prof. J. W. Jenks, of Cornell university, spoke on the establishment of an agricultural bank in the Philippines.

The progress of railroad building in the Philippines was reviewed by Capt. Frank McIntyre, assistant chief of the bureau of insular affairs of the federal government. His address was a history of the railroads of the islands. When the American government took over the islands, he said, there were in operation 120 miles of railroads. There are now 205 miles in operation, with 709 miles under construction.

Former Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith presided at the evening session and made the opening address, which he concluded by conveying the greetings of the academy to James Bryce, the British ambassador, presenting him as the permanent honorary chairman of the annual meeting.

The eminent diplomat was greeted with long and continued applause, which was accompanied by waving of handkerchiefs, on the part of the ladies.

YOUNG MARVIN MAY BE FOUND.

Man Arrested in Gloversville, N. Y., as Suspected Abductor.

Gloversville, N. Y., April 20.—Alexander H. Allen, who gives his occupation as a traveling vendor of gas mantles, is being held by the police of this city as the suspected abductor of Horace Marvin, Jr., the four-year-old son of Dr. Horace Marvin, of Dover, Del. Allen came to Gloversville two weeks ago accompanied by a woman several years his junior and a small boy. They took furnished rooms. A photograph of the boy was secured and forwarded to Dr. Marvin. In reply he wired Chief Smith that he would send his nephew, Myles Standish, of New York, to identify the boy.

LEAPS FROM WINDOW TO DEATH.

Well Known Christian Scientist Commits Suicide in Boston.

Boston, April 20.—Miss Mary E. Tomlinson of Concord, N. H., committed suicide here Friday by jumping from a window in an upper story of the Parker House. The woman died in the hotel office a few moments after her leap.

It is believed that she was demented. She came to Boston Thursday morning.

Miss Tomlinson was a sister of Irving C. Tomlinson, one of the readers of the "Christian Science" church of Boston and one of the defendants in the suit pending for an accounting of the property of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy.

Concord, N. H., April 20.—Friends of Miss Mary E. Tomlinson, who killed herself in Boston, were greatly surprised to hear of her act. Miss Tomlinson up to a year ago was second reader in the Concord Christian Science church. When the term of her brother, Rev. Irving C. Tomlinson, as first reader expired she also retired from her position. Since then she had been active as leader. She formerly lived in Hudson, Mich. She was 35 years of age and is survived by four brothers.

TEN FEET FROM DISASTER.

Express Train Narrowly Escapes Wreck at East Hartford, Conn.

East Hartford, Conn., April 20.—The eastbound New York-Boston express on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad narrowly escaped plunging into a 20-foot ditch, while passing through this town late Friday, only the timely warning of members of a gang of Italian track laborers averting the accident.

The main street grade crossing is in process of elimination, the tracks being raised ten feet and the street lowered the same distance. The eastbound tracks had been torn up at this point and a flag man stationed there to warn trains. He is said to have left his post unguarded. The express was approaching at a high speed when the Italians rushed down the track and flagged the train, which was brought to a stop ten feet from the excavation.

The keen blade of trade reciprocity will divide the dollars of the community among the home people. Keeping the dollars at home will build saving accounts at the bank and make for general prosperity. Sending them to the city mail-order house will bring bankruptcy and ruin to all except the city.

erect a new building they should buy the material for that building at home of their neighbor, Mr. Building Material Man.

And let us speak a word for Mr. Printer Man also. He is a part of this community; he contributes to its prosperity; he advertises it, and he is entitled to his place in the circle through which the community's dollars are to circulate. When you, Mr. Merchant, want printing of any kind, give the job to the home printer. The dollar that you spend with him he will again spend with you, and both will make a profit on it. It is but fair that he have this, his legitimate portion of the home trade. He is as much a part of the community as yourself, and as much entitled to your support as you are entitled to the support of the farmer, the mechanic, the preacher, the doctor.

The battle against the mail-order octopus can never be a successful one unless all interests are actively engaged in it. It can never be successful so long as the merchant wants it preached but does not want to practice it himself. The merchant who sends his saving account to the city bank for safe keeping is not entitled to the support of the community whose money he takes from it. The merchant who will not patronize his brother merchants, who makes his visits to the city an excuse for buying his own household supplies, supplies that are not carried on his own shelves, of the city merchants, is not entitled to the support of the community. Such a merchant wants to preach but not practice home trade. He wants to do with the community's dollars just what he condemns in others—send them away from the community. He would bankrupt the community for selfish interests.

There are few, if any, such merchants as this in this or other communities, but if there are any here it is not for their benefit that this paper is preaching home trade to its readers.

We hear much of the strength of trusts and combinations. In what does their strength lie? To a large extent, in the fact that they control the trade in the commodities in which they are dealing. They make every dollar they spend an interest earning dollar. Let us form a little trust of our own. Let all of us, merchant, farmer, doctor, mechanic, preacher, editor, spend our dollars at home, keep them at home, and we have organized a trust of our own that will bring to each of us our share of earnings on the capital invested.

This is not a hard problem to figure out for ourselves. The farmer, let us say, wants a dollar's worth of sugar. He buys it of the home groceryman, and the groceryman makes will grow, and your town holdings will grow in value at the same time the farmer's acres grow in value. The home trade problem is a many sided one, and the home merchant's side of the problem is not the least of them.

WRIGHT A. PATTERSON.

REASON FOR ALL THINGS.

Customs That Now Seem Peculiar Had Origin in Wisdom.

If you are patient enough to ferret it out you will find that there is a reason for every little idiosyncrasy we have, for every queer thing we do. Take, for example, the wearing of widows' caps. Why do widows cover their heads with these curious little arrangements of maline, crepe and lace? It is a custom handed down to us from the Romans, who shaved their heads when they mourned the loss of a dear one. This idea was all right for men who did not mind appearing without a single spear of hair on their heads, but of course it was most unattractive for women. No one, not even a Roman matron, liked to be seen bald-headed, so the women of the Tiber devised a little cap to hide their baldness, and thus the custom has come down to us, even though heads are no longer shaved as a sign of mourning.

The reason that bells are tolled for the dead is that years ago, when tolling was first established, the people thought that the sound of the bells frightened away evil spirits who hovered near the dead.

Why do men, and women, too, wear bows on the left side of their hats? The reason is simple enough. When the head covering built upon the order of hats of to-day was first introduced it was ornamented with a ribbon which went around the crown and hung down in two ends on the left side, reaching below the shoulder. These ends were a sort of anchor, or safety line, and were put there expressly to be seized when a sudden gust of wind threatened to blow the hat away. The ribbons were put on the left side because, as a general thing, the left hand was more apt to be free than the right. Eventually these ribbons were knotted in a fetching bow with flowing ends, and then they were cut off quite close to the hat, so that they form a very small and stiff bow knot.

It is always the custom to throw old shoes after a bride and this queer custom came into vogue when parents were in the habit of using their slippers to keep their girls obedient and good. Now the slipper is not really intended for the bride, but for the bridegroom, who is supposed to use it for the same purpose the mother and father of olden times did.

Failures are, with heroic minds, the stepping stones of success.

J.E. MADDEN'S STABLE

Noted Running Horse Owner Has Promising Stake Entries.

SALVIDERE AND OTHERS.

His String Consists Largely of Two-year-olds—Has Charge of the Hitchcock Horses—Races in Which He Has Entries.

John E. Madden has divided his stable this season into three sections, and all of his horses will be raced on the eastern tracks. They began at Benning, Washington.

He has a number of horses which belong to Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., and F. R. Hitchcock, among them being the champion two-year-old of last year, Salvadore, as well as a number of other well known performers.

His own stable is mostly made up of two-year-olds of his own breeding, with which he will strive to win many of the richer events, as they have been liberally nominated in all the valuable two-year-old stakes at the eastern tracks. At Gravesend, N. Y., he has entered three in the Clover stakes, eleven in three two-year-old events at Brighton Beach, N. Y., twenty-five at Belmont park, New York, and thirty-eight in five two-year-old events at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y. A number of his horses are still at Little Rock, Ark., and at his breeding farm at Hamburg, Place, Lexington, Ky., but they will be shipped east in time to keep their engagements in the various stake events.

Eighteen of his horses have been nominated for the early races for youngsters, and he has a total of seventy-seven entries to these events at the New York tracks.

The brown colt by Plaudit-Imp has only one early engagement, and that is in the National Stallion.

The chestnut filly by Plaudit-Passan is entered in the Distaff at Brighton Beach and the Great Trial, Double Event, Zephyr, Spring and Vernal at Sheepshead Bay.

The bay filly by Tankeo-La Polka is nominated for the National Stallion event at Belmont park and the Great Trial, Double Event and the Vernal at Sheepshead Bay.

The chestnut filly by Plaudit-Semaphore is entered in the National Stallion.

THE ROUNDUP COLUMN.

Willie West Tells of the Finding of the Original Ossified Gopher.

Scientists have long speculated as to the exact origin of the gopher. In his modern form the gopher is at times a reasonable person, unaddicted to excessive sobriety when in the region of the clubhouse, and shows a marked tendency to blame all his bad shots on somebody else—the clubmaker, the ball tender or the caddy boy. Also his boastfulness and indifference to notoriety in any shape have been noticed.

All those distinctly human traits have led anthropological expounders to classify him with civilized man, strangely enough, and, even more strange, the scientists have been proved correct beyond a doubt. For once science is shown to have progressed beyond the guesswork stage. Accompanying this thesis is a drawing made from an ossified figure unearthed recently at Montclair, N. J., the original home of par golf.

The figure is recognized as the remains of the original gopher, first, because he is ossified; second, because he holds a club that was designed for no sensible purpose; third, because he exhibits a shape that comes within the ban of the statute of limitations; fourth, because he has a cheek of surpassing hardness.

But the real importance to sportsmen in the discovery lies in the fact that this relic, of long ago, called by his high brow discoverers "Primo Homo Bunko Gensis," seemingly demonstrates that golf was originally an American game, that the Scotchmen were mere imitators of a race that flourished on this continent before the dawn of mature reason. Civilization was then in its incubator. No other reason can be ascribed possibly for the playing of the game by "Homo Bunko."

P. S.—The fifth proof that the antiquity was a golfer is that, according to his discoverers, he had been lying around Montclair, N. J., for upward of three centuries.

I've just finished reading another yarn about one of those "sensationally heavy hitters," described by a truthful ball scribe as just recruited to the league team, fresh from the bay foundry. How is it that so many teams get so many of these new sluggers every year that knock the ball off the reservation in print, but never do it after the season opens at the home or any other grounds?

This is the way these new bar breakers bat in practice, when no outsiders but the scribes are present:

"Bing Bung, the great ex-woodchopper bought by Manager Snuffy Bluff from the I. O. U. league of southeast Mexico, punched three of Pitcher Punk's choicest benders over the clubhouse roof this morning for three consecutive home runs in a practice game."

Two weeks after the season opens we read these lines in the same paper: "Bing Bung got his today. Manager Bluff kicked him off the plantation in jig time. Bung was a four flusher from the start, couldn't hit a six wheeled coach with a tennis racket and did nothing but talk all the time he drew down $20 a week blood money from the home team.

"Razoo for you! Skiddoo, Bing Bung! Don't play ball! Go get hung!"

That's what you might call "before hand" as applied to ball. Why can't some of the scribes talk boss sense before as well as after?

Or do they bank on the old golden text of the politicians:

"The people forget."

P. S.—The people may forget, but the fans don't. WILLIE WEST.

BAN'S SALARY TALK.

American League President Says $5,000 Players Don't Pay.

CAREER OF TIM JORDAN.

How the Great Brooklyn Slugger and First Baseman Rose to Fame—He Made Twelve Home Runs Last Season, Leading the League.

In view of the numerous American league players who have been making kicks for increased salaries, President Ban Johnson was asked recently for an opinion, which drew from him these comments: "The American league has always been liberal in the salaries of its players and so far as is consistent with business prudence and sagacity will share its profits with the men in uniform, but there is a limit to the salary of teams and players that cannot be exceeded."

"I do not care to discuss cases, but I have investigated each one on its merits, and in not one instance has the policy of the club been penurious."

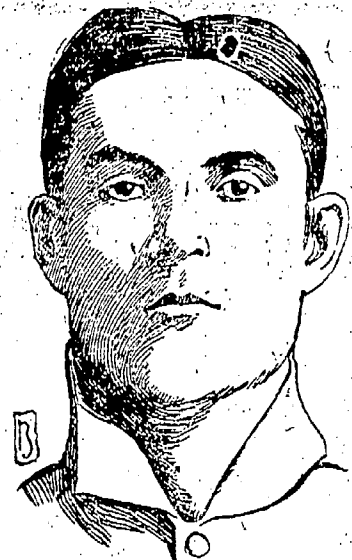

"We want our players to be satisfied, but we will not today to them or turn over to them the conduct of our clubs."

"Before the advent of the American league as a rival of the National $2,400 salaries were rare, and $40,000 was regarded as an enormous sum to pay in a season for the services of a whole team. Major league players must bear in mind that the game is on a peace basis and that there is no competition for their services. We are not trying to reduce our expenses, but no club owner can in justice to himself or his associates in our league pay $5,000 salaries, however valuable the player may be."

"We have all our men in line, with few exceptions, and the holdouts will display lack of business sense and poor judgment in looking after their personal welfare."

Tim Jordan, the first baseman, who after a long career of comparative obscurity in the minor leagues in one season achieved national prominence as the hard hitting first baseman of the Brooklyn club of the National league, is a native of New York city, where he was born thirty-five years ago and where he is immensely popular—so popular, in fact, that social organizations are named after him and give balls in his honor.

Jordan made his professional debut with the Senecas of New York in 1890.

TIM JORDAN.

In 1900 he played with the South Brother Island and Hoboken (N. J.) field clubs. In 1901 he was a substitute on the Washington club of the American league. In 1902 he played with Newark of the Eastern league and in 1903 with the Nashua club of the New England league.

The beginning of his rise was in 1904, when he became a member of the Baltimore team of the Eastern league. He did fine work that year and in 1905 attracted the attention of the Brooklyn club, which purchased his release.

He was given a trial by Brooklyn at the start of the 1906 season and at once made himself solid by his hard and timely hitting and became before the season was far advanced one of the stars of the team, sharing the stellar batting honors with Lumley. During the season he only hit for .262, but his long hits won many games and earned for him twelve homers, leading the National league in that line.

Player Starangel, formerly of the Lincoln (Neb.) club and of the outlaw league, has been declared by the National baseball commission to belong to the Washington American league team.

The application of Guy O. Woodruff to be declared a free agent was denied by the commission, it appearing his transfer from Baton Rouge to Cleveland, later being released to Des Moines, was entirely regular, his failure to receive his contract within the usual time not being the fault of the Des Moines club, which tried unsuccessfully to locate him.

Player Thomas Hughes, formerly with the Washington team, is to be reinstated on payment of a $100 fine. He became ineligible by playing with the Logan Square club of Chicago.

Cincinnati's New Hitters.

Olinchatti has apparently picked up two sluggers in Wolters and Haas. These two players have been the leading hitters in the practice games to date.

The Contradictory Jap

One of the best summings up of Japanese character we have yet seen is included in a strong story published in Appleton's Magazine. One of the characters says:

"He is a bundle of contradictions, and measured by American standards he is a fanatic, straight from Topsey Turvy land. He may be a Chesterfield and a cheerful liar one minute, and a Red Indian the next—a scoundrel and a welcher today, and a Napoleon tomorrow. Anyway, like Kansas dust, he is bound to be a good deal in the public eye, and he will bear watching. We westerners have been taught to regard the little Jap as an amusing and precocious child given to obstructing sidewalk traffic with his polite contests in kowtowing, to sipping from the branches of the cherry tree his dainty poems addressed to his friends, and to dawdling for hours over the ceremonial tea; and when we see him under the tent flap, howling and laughing and playing checkers, he seems a velvet-pawed kitten in knicker, and yet you and I have seen him in battle a ramping raging tiger, greedy of Slav bayonets, and afterwards dragging himself to the field hospital, shot to rags, unwhimpering, a mere bulldoze wrapped round a will. We never know a character until we have seen it put to the test; under stress—least of all the combination of Sphinx and Janus known as the Japanese. So studied, the embattled brown boy strikes me as a strange compound of Little Lord Fauntleroy, Peter the Hermit, and Sitting Bull—child, fanatic, and emotionless savage, all in one."

WAS NOT TO BE TAKEN IN.

Good Wife Remembered Instructions to Be Careful.

"There are still a few honest men left in the world," said J. J. Hill at a banquet in New York. "It is well to be cautious, but we should not suspect everybody. If we are too suspicious we make ourselves absurd. I worked in St. Paul in my youth and they still tell there about an old farmer and his wife who started for St. Paul on a visit. Before the couple set off they were cautioned repeatedly by their friends to beware of the St. Paul sharpers. They replied that they would keep their eyes open. And they started on their journey with a nervous determination to look out for sharpers and confidence men. Well, one way the old farmer got off at a junction to buy some lunch and the train went off without him. It was a terrible mishap. The last he saw of his wife she was crawling out of the car window shouting something reproachful at him which he could not hear on account of the noise of the train. It happened that an express train came along a few minutes later. The old farmer boarded the express and beat his wife to St. Paul by nearly an hour. He was waiting for her at the station when she arrived. He ran up to her and seized her by the collar. 'Well, Jane,' he said, 'I'm glad to see you again. I thought we were separated for good.' But the old lady jerked the valise from him indignantly. 'No, ye don't, Mr. Sharper,' she cried. 'I left my husband at the junction. Don't be comin' any of yer confidence tricks on me or I'll call a policeman.'"

RAFFLES COW TO BUY LEG.

Ingenious Scheme of a Man Disabled by a Train.

If there is more than one way to skin a cat, there is certainly more than one way in which to acquire a cork leg. The usual way is to earn money and buy it, says the New York World. The way adopted by Julius Thorne, who lives at Gleason Falls, is to let a cow raise herself and then raffle her off for a leg.

Thorne was hit by a railroad train about a year ago, and when the doctors cut off his left leg, a disease of the bone set in. The injured man was taken home, where, while he lay on his back waiting for the bone to heal, he cast about for some means whereby he could procure a cork leg. Being supplied with little in the way of the world's goods, Thorne was forced to use his ingenuity. From a neighbor he bought for a couple of dollars a sickly calf less than a month old. This he raised on skimmed milk provided by another neighbor who made his own butter, and in time the calf got strong enough to be turned out to pasture. Grazing around chestnut little, and while the calf was growing and fattening Thorne made baskets that he might have enough cash to winter the animal. By fall he had earned enough to more than do this, and recently he started a raffle. All his friends took tickets, and when the drawing takes place Thorne will celebrate by wearing his new cork leg.

Medicine in Ancient Egypt.

There is much evidence in inscriptions and manuscripts that the ancient Egyptians practiced medicine and surgery extensively. Probably their practice was based on little knowledge of anatomy. Each physician treated only one or two diseases. The sick were exposed in public places so that others who had suffered similarly might tell them of helpful remedies. Diseases of the eye were best understood and received both medical and surgical treatment. The most important medical manuscript found in Egypt is the Papyrus Ebers, written 2000 B. C., and discovered in Memphis. Disease, according to the Egyptians, was due to the anger of some deity, the result of the triumph of evil in its struggle with good—an idea which is still very general throughout Africa and Asia, and which at some time has been prevalent in modified forms in almost every race—Records of the Past.

Decline in English Study.

In all directions the results of the long neglect of serious English study are visible, writes Sidney Lee in the Academy. The worst English is practiced and appreciated, outside a very small circle of English society. The municipal libraries, which minister to the literary needs of the multitude, overflow with literary vacuity and vapidity. The standard of the average taste in literature steadily declines.

HARD TASK FOR TRANSLATORS

Much Ingenuity Called For in Compiling Bible into Zulu.

In the words of the Reverend C. W. Kilborn, the true missionary aims to repeat the saying of his Master, "The words which thou gavest me I have given unto them." He may preach and explain, but the people must be able to search for themselves. Ultimately he must leave the Bible in the language of the people to whom he has been sent as the foundation upon which his work must rest. Strongly convinced of this, the Bible Society, working in Natal, South Africa, began the translation of the New Testament into Zulu. It was almost a task of despair. The mental capacity of the Zulus was of the lowest order, and they had practically no terms to express spiritual truths. There was no proper word for "God," and, of course, none for such abstract terms as "faith," "holiness," "worship," "conscience," "honesty," etc. A spiritual vocabulary had to be created, and existing words applied to material things had gradually to be twisted around with an ingenuity truly amazing. But at last the Zulus possessed a complete Zulu Bible in one volume, which was available for the millions of African savages who ranged from the borders of Cape Colony on the south to the shores of Lake Nyassa on the north, and from the Indian ocean on the east to the western borders of the Transvaal, and into Rhodesia on the west.—William George Fitz Gerald in the Circle Magazine.

How He Awoke the Congregation.

Ferdinando Nicholls, who was at one time rector of St. Mary Arches, Exeter, England, in the midst of his sermon one day discovered that several aldermen in the congregation had fallen asleep. He paused and sat down. The people then began to stand up and move about, and this had the effect of awakening the sleepers, who stood up with the rest to ascertain the cause of Mr. Nicholls' silence.

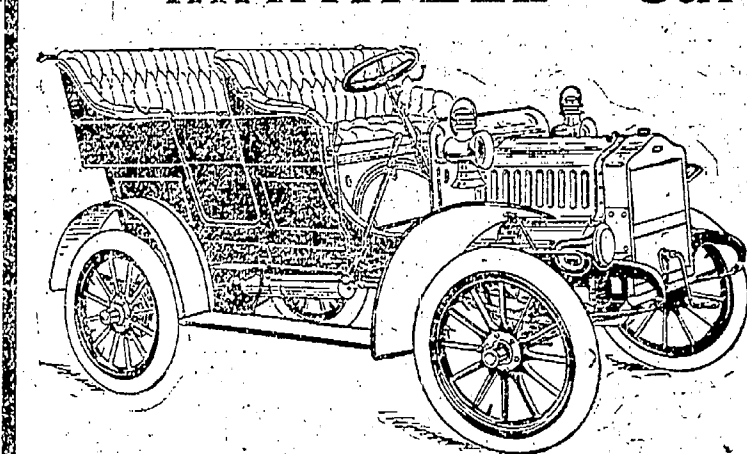

"Upon this he arose and addressed the drowsy aldermen as follows: 'The sermon is not yet done, and now you are awake I hope you will hearken more diligently.'"

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Fair tonight and Sunday; rising temperature Sunday.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

An old gentleman, who had been living on borrowed time for ten years, said, the other day, "I never come downtown nowadays without feeling lonesome, for the men that I knew in Janesville half a century ago are most of them gone, and I feel like a stranger in my own city."

This statement may seem a little odd, and yet it expresses the sentiment of old age, and the experience of the men and women who are living close to the edge of time.

The viewpoint of life has everything to do with the coloring. The panorama which stretches on through the years, from the pinnacle of early man and womanhood, presents a fascinating outlook.

The most attractive feature is the rank and file of active humanity engaged in the conflict for existence or supremacy. An eager longing to enter the race, possessors, them, and hope inspires confidence and stimulates endeavor.

To the veterans at the other end of the vista, the panorama is no longer prospective. They have been players on the active stage and the drama has contained more or less of tragedy.

Hope is no longer an incentive, and as memory harks back through the years, disappointment and blighted ambition blur the vision, and suggest the thought so often expressed, "If I could live my life again, how much more I would accomplish."

It has been said very truthfully that "experience is the only teacher," and so in spite of the opportunities for observation, and the chances every day to profit by the experiences of others, the most of us insist on learning the lessons of life for ourselves.

The young man who stands at the threshold, full of vitality, and feeling equal to all emergencies, so far as a test of physical strength and endurance is concerned, pays but little attention to the men in the ranks ahead of him, who are in the midst of the fray.

It does not concern him that they are struggling under burdens which he is anxious to assume, or that many of them drop out of the ranks, because unequal to the strain.

He does not note that some of them bear the marks of dissipation and are largely responsible for their own undoing.

He has confidence in his own untold ability to meet the physical and moral conditions of every environment, and win the prizes which other men have lost.

The fountain of perpetual youth he expects to enjoy for time to come, and his vision never penetrates the future far enough to take in the ranks of veterans, who through voluntary or enforced idleness, find themselves stranded on the verge of time.

This carefree and irresponsible disposition is not confined to the young men of the land, but extends down the line to men in middle life.

They are near enough the border line of mature age, to catch the echo of enfeebled voices, and to note the ravages of time, but these make no impression.

If they plan at all for the future they plan to live forever in the full enjoyment of all the God-given faculties with which they are endowed, and so it happens that the current of life bears on its surface the driftwood of humanity, thoughtless and irresponsible, to a weak and helpless old age.

The poorhouses of the land would be crowded to the doors, but for the fact that a large percentage of this unfortunate class, drop out of the ranks and find a premature resting place in the churchyard.

The old Bible injunction, "Prepare to meet thy God," is always important, and is vigorously proclaimed from the pulpits of the land, but equally important is the more modern suggestion, "Prepare to meet thyself over on the shady side of life," where the principal occupation is thinking, deprived of hope or ambition, so far as the here and now is concerned.

In spite of the long era of prosperity, which has blessed the nation, there is an army of people today who live from hand to mouth. A death in the home or a month of sickness would mean a year of sacrifice and economy.

The surplus income may go to the saloon, it may be squandered for luxuries, or recklessly given to the church, or some philanthropy, in either event the money is gone which belongs to the home, and which can only be accumulated during the years of earning capacity.

Every honest man owes it to himself to provide for himself, and if he has assumed the responsibility of a home he is bound by a sacred obligation to protect and provide for that home. It is entitled to the first consideration.

The ideal life, so strenuously discussed in labor circles, provides for eight hours of sleep, eight hours of work, and eight hours of recreation. The age limit suggests three divisions of time between birth and the age of 60, namely: 20 years of childhood and youth, 20 years of preparation and development, and 20 years of application.

The man who experiments with a new calling after he has reached the age of 40, usually fails, and if life is to mean very much to him, he ought to be well established in some line of work by the time he reaches the thirtieth milestone.

The years between 60 and the end of the journey, may be ripe in experience and rich in reward, if resources have been properly guarded, but the man who approaches this golden age, with no provision for its demands, is doomed to bitter disappointment and humiliation.

If his life has been devoted to business, and he finds himself stranded, he will discover that his services are not in demand at ten dollars a week, and if he belongs to the great industrial world, he will suffer the same experience.

The notion prevails among many good people, that God will provide for His people, and not suffer them to come to want, but with due reverence it is safe to say that when the Creator endows a man with the average equipment, and surrounds him with opportunities, that He expects him to provide for himself, and unless he does it, he will wake up some day to find himself destitute and helpless.

A young man said, the other day, "I am 35 years old. I have been in one employ for 15 years and have reached the limit, so far as advancement is concerned."

"In a dozen years more I will be 50, and I realize that unless well established before that time that life will be a failure, so far as any large degree of success is concerned."

The young man had come to himself and was casting about to better his condition. He believed in providence, but he also believed in personal responsibility, and he was right in his aspirations.

The average income of life is limited to half the span of existence. The first 20 years are years of dependency, and the last 20, if extreme age is reached, means more or less dependency upon individual resources or charity.

There is nothing more pitiful than dependent old age, and the man who fails to look far enough ahead to recognize this fact, and provide for it, is guilty of negligence of a type which is not easily condoned.

Bible Still a Guide.

Sheboygan Journal: There are a good many persons who regard the Bible as an old fashioned book, long ago discarded by business men and men of affairs as not worth reading. Bible lying open on a table beside him. Mr. Eckels, it appears, was in the habit of reading a chapter every night before going to sleep. Evidently the Bible still occupies a considerable place as a guide of life even among men of the world.

Is the old-fashioned sea captain extinct as a type? FLORENCE DUGAN IN COURT TODAY

STATE PROMPTLY CHECKMATED
RUMORED ATTEMPT TO RAIL-ROAD HER TO INSANE ASYLUM.

STILL QUITE UNPERTURBED

Arraigned on Charge of Assault With Intent to Kill and Examination
Set For Wednesday Morning
—$3,000 Bail Bonds Not Furnished.

Rumor reached District Attorney J. L. Fisher this morning that a move was on foot to have Florence Dugan, who is held at the county jail pending the outcome of Thursday night's shooting affair, examined with regard to her sanity and, if found guilty, railroaded to an asylum before any criminal charges could be preferred against her. If such a plan was entertained by the defendant's counsel, H. L. Maxwell, it was promptly checkmated by the State. For, within a half hour's time, a warrant charging the woman with assault with a deadly weapon, with intent to commit murder, was made out and she was summoned to municipal court.

Betrayed No Emotion.
Shortly before twelve o'clock, accompanied by Undersecretary, George Appleby and two of her relatives, she appeared at the city hall—a woman of slight stature, with irregularly balanced features, consisting of a weak chin, a rather large mouth, a prominent nose, lustrous but wide-open blue-gray eyes, and low forehead crowned by a bank of dull brown hair. She was neatly but somewhat shabbily attired in a black hat, a mouse-colored jacket with box of fur, and a black skirt. A small amount of onlookers gathered but she betrayed no curiosity, but she betrayed no sign of embarrassment, or nervousness, and, indeed, appeared ready to accept what ever might come with perfect composure and stoicism. She stepped quickly to the judge's stand when summoned and listened with no sign of feeling to the reading of the warrant.

Bail Fixed at $3,000.
The warrant recited that on the 18th day of April, 1907, the woman, armed with a 32 calibre revolver containing cartridges loaded with five leaden bullets did feloniously and willfully make an assault on George Schumacher with the intent to kill and murder. Attorney Maxwell indicated that the preliminary examination to which the defendant was entitled would be desired and it was set for Wednesday morning, April 24, at ten o'clock. Bail was fixed at $3,000 and as no one appeared to furnish the bonds, the prisoner was remanded to the county jail. Should the victim, Schumacher, succumb to his wounds, the old warrant will be withdrawn and a new one charging murder substituted. The State claims that the woman now admits that she was never legally married to Schumacher and that it will not be necessary to examine the records at Rockford.

Letters Conveying Threats.
Correspondence will play an important part in the evidence on both sides when Florence Dugan is brought to trial, as she surely will be unless an investigation of her mental condition results in her being committed to an asylum. Two letters written on bill-forms of J. E. Hemming, proprietor of the Riverside hotel, and dated April 17, have come into the hands of the district attorney. Both of them were sent to Miss Etta Smith, Rome, Wisconsin. One is simply signed "Florence" and the other which was evidently meant to corroborate the statements made in the first, bears the signature of Miss May Dickens. The letters are in part as follows:

"Etta Smith: hear that you are getting ready to marry George Schumacher. I feel so sorry for you that I will half to break it up but I must. George can't have two wives so near as that I swear by our god that you never will be his wife. I must say I have got something to say about that you are getting your self in trouble and also George you have no business trying to coxe any ones man away and I will put you both as far as I can. I have given you warning and if you don't stop right to him at once I will come else take it in hand. I can prove that George stays here with me more than half of his time. He stayed with you from Friday night until Monday and as soon as he got back he told me all about it and he shows me all the letters you write to him. Do you think I would stand by and see you marry him. I have wished myself dead a hundred times since I saw him. George talks all kinds of things about you and then goes and make you think he is a fine man. I can't think what ales him to ever asken you to be his wife. George will be behind bars before he knows it. If you marry him I will have you both locked up and I will see it to right away if you write to him again you are going to far now and I don't care what I do to him. I remember what I say I tell you—it shows what you are anyway."

"FLORENCE."
"Miss Smith—I hear that you are going to marry George Schumacher. I tell you you hadnt better try that. He is a marage man and I know his wife well and he is showing you letters around town and is making a damfool of you. I know that George stays here with his wife more than half of his time. How can he take care of you when his wife has to take care of him. He drinks his and his wifes money up and you had better get a nother man if you want one as bad as that. You had better take my advice and out it on this is wrote by Miss May Dickens of the Riverside hotel. I am head dining room girl hear at that."

"Gloom" Drives Man Away.
Men will not put up with melancholy in women. It should be as natural to a woman to adorn herself with cheerfulness as with ornaments. If she cares at all for the impression she creates, she will no more be melancholy than she will be slovenly.

WORTH CONSIDERING.

"Careful housekeepers are not always governed by the price of materials that enter into their food supply. Usually it convinced that the article is genuine, the price is secondary consideration."
The reference was in regard to Crystal Lake ice, and is well worth considering, for the ice that is daily distributed to the homes throughout the city needs more than a passing thought.

Will Grow 135 Acres of Sugar Beets.
Mr. J. L. Walsh, who has charge of the large farm of the J. I. Case company at Racine, has contracted with the Rock County Sugar Co. to plant 135 acres of beets this season. Mr. Walsh is one of the most successful farmers in Wisconsin and is bound to make a success of beet growing, as the land intended for planting is exceptionally rich, having been continually fertilized and well kept up.

The Rock County Sugar company has placed five German families at his disposal to perform the hand labor. The growing of beets in Wisconsin has heretofore been confined to small individual acreage, although through the west it is no uncommon matter for farmers to contract for from 100 to 500 acres. Mr. Walsh's success will be looked forward to with much interest.

The half-bearers were: Herman and Fred Schumacher, John Polzan, Chris Elzan, Chris Royel and William Henzel.

SCHUMAKER IS ALIVE BUT SLOWLY DYING

Physicians in Charge State He Can Not Recover—May Live Thirty-six Hours.

George Schumaker was alive at the time of the going to press and while under the influence of opiates did not appear to be suffering exceedingly from his wounds. Late yesterday afternoon Dr. Wauffe, assisted by Drs. Gammon, Merritt and Elfield, operated upon the patient with the hopes of locating the bullet in his back. This it was found impossible and the pressure on the spine was lessened as much as possible by the removal of the splintered bone, pieces of clothing and clots of blood found there. From his waist down Schumaker is paralyzed, there being a slight circulation, but no control over the limbs or even the interior organs. He has been fed entirely on liquid food and has asked for nothing more substantial. He is conscious most of the time and his temperature this morning was about normal. He passed a good night and was resting well this afternoon. No attempt was made to search for the bullet in his lung as it was feared a hemorrhage would result. Dr. Wauffe stated this afternoon that he believed the man might live thirty-six hours longer, possibly a little longer, but that his recovery was out of the question.

An Animal Story For

The Superstitious Rooster

"I don't believe in your superstitions," said Mr. Dorking, looking very wise and scratching his head with his left claw.

"Well, I do," replied Mr. Shanghai, shaking himself as he rose from the sand. "I know they come true."

"What do?" queried Dorking.

"Oh, signs and omens," said Shanghai, looking wise as he shifted his position from one foot to the other. "Why, there was Mrs. Cochran, who sat on this-teen eggs and hatched them all. Of course nothing but bad luck could follow that number, and they all died but one, and he became a suicide."

"You don't say so? How was that?"

"Oh, he jumped into a hay cutter by mistake and got fed to the cows."

"And then there was Bilk the Plymouth Rock rooster, who had his head cut off and was boiled for soup on Friday, and you know that's bad luck—to have a thing like that occur on Friday."

"Yes," Shanghai went on, "and omens help me out too. Now, for instance, no dorky will ever steal a chicken in the full of the moon."

"Won't they, though?"

"No, they won't. They only come in the dark of the moon, same as when they go after the left hind foot of the graveyard rabbit. So you see I know when to sleep peacefully and am not afraid in full moonlight."

"Would you trust yourself with that idea?" asked Dorking in doubtful tones.

"Most certainly," replied Shanghai, with assurance.

"I wouldn't," said Dorking. "And don't you pin your safety on such nonsense."

He was right, for when he woke at midnight the full moon was shining, and in its light he saw poor Shanghai, with his head sticking out of a big bag, carried by Sam Slick, of another hue, who was making tracks for the woods. Superstitious and omens sometimes don't work.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Rather Brave Chicken

There was a chicken who wanted to be a policeman. Now, what do you think of that? A chicken a policeman!

Anyway he went down to see the police board, which is the body of men who make the policemen, and he told them just what he wanted.

"Very well," they said, and they turned him over to the doctors to see if he was strong and healthy, and they said he was.

"Now," they declared, "we will have a little talk with you to see if you are brave enough to be a policeman."

"IS THAT LIKELY TO HAPPEN?"

"Oh," exclaimed the chicken, "I'm very brave."

"Are you afraid of nothing?"

"I am afraid of nothing," said the chicken boldly.

"What would you do if you saw two big, bad robbers in the dark, with pistols in their hands, and they tried to shoot a poor man and take his money from him?"

"Is that likely to happen?" asked the chicken.

"Yes."

"Then I would seize the robbers and take their pistols from them and send them to jail for twenty years," answered the chicken.

"That's very good," replied the men.

"But what would you do if you saw an old negro woman creeping up behind you, with a hatchet in her hand, about an hour before dinner?"

"Is that likely to happen?" asked the chicken.

"Yes."

"Then I guess I don't want to be a policeman. Good day, gentlemen." And the chicken was so frightened he hid behind the pigsty for two days before he ventured out to get something to eat and drink.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

HARD TASK FOR TRANSLATORS.

Much Ingenuity Called For In Compiling Bible Into Zulu.

In the words of the Reverend C. W. Kilbon, the true missionary aims to repeat the saying of his Master, "The words which thou gavest me I have given unto them." He may preach and explain, but the people must be able to search for themselves. Ultimately he must leave the Bible in the language of the people to whom he has been sent as the foundation upon which his work must rest. Strongly convinced of this, the Bible Society, working in Natal, South Africa, began the translation of the New Testament into Zulu. It was almost a task of despair. The mental capacity of the Zulus was of the lowest order, and they had practically no terms to express spiritual truths. There was no proper word for "God," and, of course, none for such abstract terms as "faith," "holiness," "worship," "conscience," "honesty," etc. A spiritual vocabulary had to be created, and existing words applied to material things had gradually to be twisted around with an ingenuity truly amazing. But at last the Zulus possessed a complete Zulu Bible in one volume, which was available for the millions of African savages who ranged from the borders of Cape Colony on the south to the shores of Lake Nyassa on the north, and from the Indian ocean on the east to the western borders of the Transvaal, and into Rhodesia on the west.—William George Fitzgerald in the Circle Magazine.

HINT FOR BOOK LENDERS.

Woman Has Ingenious Scheme Which Has Worked Well.

A book borrower's album is the device which a woman who has a fine library has employed in order that she may keep track of her books and that her friends may not be delinquent in returning them. She delighted in lending her books, but was far from pleased in purchasing her friends for their return. Now when a friend asks the loan of a book she acquiesces readily enough, but requests the borrower to write in the album his or her name and the date on which the book is borrowed. On returning it the borrower is asked to comment on the book and initial it.

This album always is kept in a conspicuous place in the drawing room, where visitors are likely to pick it up and glance it through, learning who is not prompt in returning books. The result is that this woman now has her books returned promptly, as the borrowers know they will be convicted in the album if they are delinquent. They take kindly to the plan, the lender does not have to prod them for the return of the books, and she has an album which is valuable to her as containing the comments of her friends on the treasures in her library.

CANADIAN MINERS ARE OUT.

Quit Work Despite the Orders of President Mitchell.

Vancouver, B. C., April 20.—Practically all the coal mines in eastern British Columbia and Alberta are closed. It was rumored Friday morning that President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America had instructed Vice President Sherman to ask the men to resume work, but Sherman denied this. They S. S. Lindsey, manager of the Crow's Nest Coal company, gave out a copy of a dispatch he had received from Mitchell, who said definitely that he had ordered Sherman to get the men back to work.

The men have quit work, but have not definitely gone on a strike so that they may not be prosecuted under a new Dominion government law.

TWO METHODS OF BUSINESS.

One Conspicuous Success and the Other a Complete Failure.

A few years ago the proprietor of a great steel file company in New England, which has several branch factories in various parts of America, altogether employing skilled workmen by the thousand, called at the office of a forwarding firm in New York, one of whose partners is a European, and asked that they suggest the proper way to introduce his files in Europe. This factory makes 7,000 varieties of files, and enjoys a great reputation throughout the mechanical world of America. The agent selected was a European, who had been Americanized, who believed in the virtues of the files he was to sell, and who was familiar with the great opportunities in industrial Europe. He went from one manufacturing town in the old world to another, and to demonstrate the superior quality of the American implement, took similar European tools and filed right through them, to the astonishment of foreign mechanics and factory owners. Orders began to go to America by cable, says a writer in Appleton's Magazine. It was not long before one request reached New England from Germany for 100,000 dozen. A good salesman and superior goods had done the work. The salary of the agent was raised to $20,000 a year and expenses, and the American file to-day is furthering the constructive work of every mechanical center in Europe. Contrast that masterful record with the fiasco of the American who spent $2,000 to introduce corn medicine into Japan, only to discover that the multitudes of that empire wear no shoes and consequently have no corns.

They do say that an American heiress of well known name is never by any chance allowed out of sight of one or more responsible persons, who act in the capacity of a body guard or secret service men. The luckless girl can never move outside the domicile for a run in the park or a trip down the avenue or pay a visit to another girl unless accompanied, not merely chaperoned. Chaperones do not count nowadays. And wherefore these precautions? Simply because mademoiselle is such an heiress she is a quarry for fortune hunters and a recognized class of conspirators who stick at nothing in their social brigandage! Formerly it was the detriments whom mamma feared; now it is, a much bolder schemer that may swoop down any moment and carry off the dove of millions. Funny, is it not, that such a state of things should have developed in America?—Boston Herald.

TRIFLES OF THE WARDROBE

The dressing sacques are an important part of a woman's wardrobe and the prettier the cloth and the more exquisite the design the more will the comfort be which the wearer will secure from its possession. For what woman is there who can feel really happy in a garment which is not pretty and becoming. A new cloth, "violet," is a perfect material for anything in the way of dressing gowns, as it is soft and warm and absolutely refuses to shrink when it is washed. It comes in a variety of pretty patterns and colorings, though of course only the plain white and ivory would and tress must be in its right place outside the sanctuary, but within, a head something between that of a squaw or of Struwwelpeter is what is probably to be found, reposing among lace-edged sheets and pillows in the early morning. Now it is not right that a pretty woman should ever abdicate the throne of her beauty. There is nothing so ugly as a tangled, unkempt head after a night's tumbling about on a pillow; but thanks to the incoming night caps none need present that appearance nowadays.

One exquisite little cap we saw the other day was of fine lace embroidered with the daintiest of tiny ribbons in the form of flowers and leaves in pale pink and pale blue. A band of lace was loose from the main part of the cap, and came low over the forehead, with a tuft of curls pulled out between. A second cap, what might be called the "revised Dutch" cap, a sort of glorified "mob" of finest muslin with square pieces at the side, and hanging full at the back of the neck. There were square insertions of embroidery on the sidepieces which framed the face in the most becoming way, and the cap was edged all around with Valenciennes lace, while a blue ribbon was tied in bows at either side. A third cap was a Belgian shape with quaint rounded pieces of broderie Anglaise over the ears, edged with Valenciennes; a round piece of the broderie, threaded with narrow ribbon, formed the crown of the cap at the back, while a wide ribbon passed under the sides and was tied in a big bow across the front.

Slaughter of Robins.

In central Tennessee are large tracts of cedars, the berries of which serve to attract myriads of robins in the winter. One small hamlet in this region sends to market annually enough robins to return $500 at five cents a dozen, equal to 120,000 birds. They are killed at night by torchlight and with sticks.

FUNNY ERROR OF PRINTER.

He Was Not Expecting Latin in Newspaper Copy.

William F. Waller of 3417 Harrison street, now a real estate map, but formerly a printer, newspaper man and publisher, was talking recently of amusing typographical errors. "From 1881 to 1884, when Rose Field was managing editor of the old Kansas City Times, I was foreman of the composing room," he said. "One night Field wrote an editorial paragraph poking fun at the Latin a morning contemporary had printed. Field wound up his effort with a quotation from one of Cicero's orations. The words were 'O tempora! O mores!'— meaning 'O the times, O the manners.' The paragraph went up late, and the proof-reader didn't even get a long distance look at it. The paragraph was in the paper the next morning, but the quotation read: 'O tempest, O
moose!'"—Kansas City Star.

drinking freely in the effort to counteract the depression. But the champagne seemed only to aggravate their gloom except in the case of young Jamieson. He had just succeeded through the death of his father, to the privilege of levying upon the people of 11 counties by means of trolley franchises which the legislature had granted to his father in perpetuity in return for financial services to "the party." It is, by the way, an interesting illustration of the human being's lack of thinking power that a legislator need not give away a small gold mine belonging to the public to any man for even a brief term of years without causing a revolution, but could and does give away far more valuable privileges to plunder and to tax, and give them away forever, without causing any real stir. However—young Jamieson's liquor, acting upon a mind that had not had enough experience to appreciate the meaning of the situation, drove him on to insolent taunts and boasts, addressed to his neighbors but intended for me. I ignored him, and, when the coffee was served, rose to depart.

Roebuck urged me to stay, followed me to the cloak-room, took my coat away from the servant and helped me with it. "I want to see you the first thing in the morning, Harvey," said he.

"I'll call you up, if I have time," said I.

We came out of the cloak-room, his arm linked in mine, and crossed the corner of the dining-room toward the outer door. Jamieson threw up his arm and fluttered his hand in an impertinent gesture of farewell. "So long, Senator Swollenhead," he cried in a thick voice. "We'll teach you a Domineck, roaring with laughter came to Roebuck and me standing at the door, both dazed at this magnificent shift of a "gentleman's" dinner into a board-pit. "Granby's ghost is raising hell," said he.

But I had no impulse to laugh or gloat. "Good night," said I to Roebuck, and hastened away.

It was the end of the attempt to mine the foundations of my power. But I did not neglect its plain warning. As soon as the legislature assembled, I publicly and strongly advocated the appointment of a joint committee impartially to investigate all the cities of the state, those ruled by my own party no less than those of the opposition. The committee was appointed and did its work so thoroughly that there was a popular clamor for the taking away of the charters of the cities and for rolling them from the state capital. It hardly necessary to say that my legislature and governor yielded to the clamor. And so the semi-independent petty princes, the urban bosses lost their independence and passed under my control; and the "collections" which had gone directly to them reached them by way of Woodruff as grants from my machine. I instead of revenues of their own right.

Before this securing of my horsepower was complete, I had my counter-attack upon the Burbank-Goodrich combine well under way. Immediately on my return to Fredonia from the disastrous dinner I sent for the attorney general of the state, Ferguson. He was an ideal combination of man and politician. He held to the standards of private morality as nearly as it is possible for a man to

The last word—gentlemen—was just clearing his mouth when Dominick's teapot, flung with all the force of the ex-prize-fighter's big muscles and his big body, landed in the midst of his broad white shirt-bosom. And with the teapot Dominick hurled his favorite epithet from his garbage barrel of language. With a yell Jamleson crashed over backward; his flying legs, caught by the table, tilted it; his convulsive kicks sent it over, and half the diners, including Dominick, were floored under it.

All this in a snap of the finger. And with the disappearance of the physical semblance of a company of civilized men engaged in dining in civilized fashion, the last thin veneer over hate and fury was scraped away. Curses and growling roars made a repulsive mess of sound over that repulsive mess of unmasked, half-drunken, wholly infuriated brutes. There is shrewd, sly wisdom snuggled away under the fable of the cat changed into a queen and how she sprang from her throne at sight of a mouse to pursue it on all fours. The best of us are, after all, animals changed into men by the spell of reason; and in some circumstances, it doesn't take much of a blow to dissolve that spell.

active public life to know a far more nearly than most men do, or, after they have become nurses, care, to hold. He always maintained with me a firm but tactful independence; he saw the necessity for a sordid side of politics, but he was careful personally to keep clear of smutching or beshmutching work. I had as keen an instinct for popularity as a bee has for blossoms; I knew how to do or to direct unpopular things on dark nights with a dash of lantern, how to do or to direct popular things in full uniform on a white horse. Have never ordered any man to do a task that was not morally congenial; and I was careful to respect Ferguson's notion of self-respect. I sent for him now, and outlined my plan—to bring suits, both civil and criminal, in the federal courts in the name of the state, against Roebuck and his associates of the Power trust.

When he had heard, he said: "Yes, Mr. Sawyer, we can break up the Power trust, can cause the indictment and conviction of Mr. Roebuck. I can prevent the United States attorney general from playing any of the usual tricks and defending the men who the people think he is vigorously prosecuting. But—"

"But?" said I, encouragingly.

"Is this on the level? If I undertake these prosecutions, shall I be allowed to push them honestly? Or will there be a private settlement as soon as Roebuck and his crowd see their danger?"

"No matter what happens," I replied, "you shall prosecute at least the civil suits to the end. I give you my word for that."

He thanked me warmly, for he appreciated that I was bestowing upon him an enormous opportunity for a national fame.

"And you?" asked I. "If you succeed in this prosecution, will you remain in the public service or will you accept the offers the interests will make and remove to New York and become a rich corporation lawyer?"

He reflected before answering. "That depends," said he. "If you are going to stay on in control of the estate, I shall stick to public life; for I believe you will let me have what I call a career. But, if you are going to get out and leave me at the mercy of those fellows, I certainly shan't stay where they can fool the people into turning on me."

"I shall stay on," said I, "and after me, there will be Woodruff—no less, of course, there's some sort of

 As we have said, but for Osce-

 Seminole war at all, and all things considered, his career marks the most humiliating war the United States ever engaged in, says a writer in the than 6,000 Seminoles, men, women

 tilities began with the murder of Gen.
 Thompson by Osceola. That great chief's cunning, capacity and courage had cost the nation no less than $30,000, every Indian brave that he led. Such an appalling record of destruction stands against no other fighter on all our frontiers.

BENEDICT GIMBEL ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

PHILADELPHIA MERCHANT IS FOUND WOUNDED IN HOTEL.

THROAT AND WRISTS CUT

Sequel to His Arrest in New York for Improper Conduct and Attempt to Bribe Police.

New York, April 20.—Benedict Gimbel, the wealthy Philadelphia merchant who was arrested in this city Thursday on the double charge of exerting improper influence over Ivor Clark, a 16-year-old boy, and attempted bribery of the county detectives who made the arrest, lies in St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, N. J., unconscious from wounds believed by the police to have been self-inflicted. Bleeding from gashes on his throat and severed arteries in both wrists, Gimbel was found at seven o'clock Friday night in a room which he had engaged the night before at the Palace hotel in Hoboken. He was unconscious from loss of blood when he was removed to the hospital, where an examination of his effects made certain his identity.

Was Out on Bonds. Late Thursday night Gimbel was released from the Tombs under $6,000 bonds. Where he then went was not known to his friends. He was generally supposed to have been at an up-town hotel, though it was reported that he had returned to his home in Philadelphia.

It now appears that immediately following his release Gimbel crossed on a ferry to Hoboken and went to the Palace hotel, registering there as Wilson Helge, of Trenton, N. J. He was assigned to a room on the second floor and a half hour later ordered luncheon which was served in his room. Among the dishes was a glass water pitcher. This was found broken and it is supposed Gimbel's injuries were inflicted by the pieces.

Nothing was heard from Gimbel during the night or Friday morning, and at three o'clock in the afternoon a chambermaid went to his room. Gimbel was in bed and ordered the maid from the door saying that he wished to sleep. The girl returned to the room early in the evening and found that the door had been secured from the inside.

Found Bleeding on Floor. The lock was forced and Gimbel was discovered stretched out on the floor and bleeding freely from several wounds. He was clad in trousers and undershirt. Physicians stopped the bleeding and after his removal to the hospital his wounds were dressed. At ten o'clock at night his condition was said to have improved, although it was still critical.

Further examination by the police developed that the cracks in the doors and windows had been stuffed airtight with surgeon's antiseptic gauze. Gimbel was to have been given a hearing in court here Saturday. His attorney, Daniel O'Reilly, had stated that Gimbel's defense will be that blackmail was attempted.

Several members of the Gimbel family, including Benedict Gimbel's wife, arrived at Hoboken Friday night. Mrs. Gimbel went immediately to the hospital, where she remained at the bedside of her husband. Dr. William Jurist, of Philadelphia, who was hastily summoned, also arrived late at night and immediately went into consultation with the hospital physicians. Later he said Gimbel probably would recover.

BANK CHIEFS CONVICTED.

Officers of Chicago Institution Given
Fines and Imprisonment.

Chicago, April 20.—Abner Smith, for ten years a judge on the circuit bench of Cook county, was found guilty Friday evening in the criminal court of entering into a conspiracy to cheat and defraud the stockholders and depositors of the Bank of America, the institution of which he was president during its career of two months.

The penalty fixed by the jury is imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not exceeding five years and the payment of a fine of $1,000.

The jury also found Gustav F. Sorrow, vice president of the wrecked bank, guilty on the same indictment as President Smith, and he was given the same penalty.

Jerome V. Pierce was found guilty and fined $500.

F. B. Creelman, the lumberman, the fourth defendant, who was a stockholder in the bank, was declared not guilty and was discharged by the court.

Hopeless Deadlock in Rhode Island. Providence, R. I., April 20.—The Rhode Island legislature will adjourn on Tuesday next and it appears probable that a United States senator will not be elected at this session. Fifty-eight ballots for senator have failed to result in a choice and it is understood that only one more will be taken.

Heavy Snowstorm in Kansas. Topeka, Kan., April 20.—A heavy snowstorm prevailed Friday night in the extreme western section of Kansas. At Lakin the ground is covered with two inches of snow and the rail continues. Telegraph wires are working badly, the Santa Fe having only one wire west of Dodge City.

Norris Brown

Hon. Norris Brown, the new United States senator from Nebraska, is not only a young man, but is also a comparatively poor man for a member of the upper house of congress. Senator Brown was born on a farm, and during his entire boyhood and early youth he worked on the farm, walking many miles to a country schoolhouse in order to obtain a common school education. Occasionally he would get the loan of a big farm horse to travel the eight miles to school. He persisted in his studies, and in 1879 he managed to enter the state university of Iowa, and was graduated four years later. He succeeds Senator Joseph H. Millard.

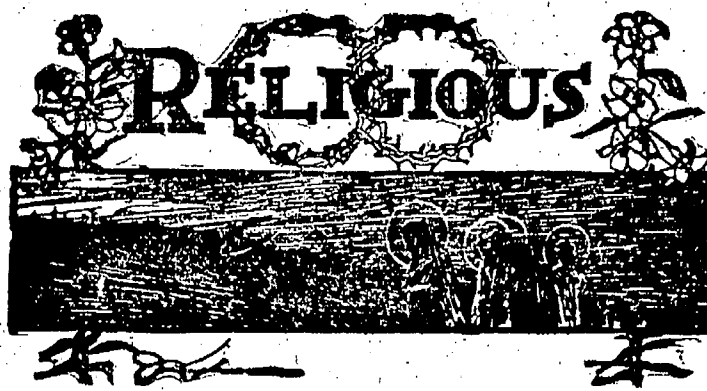

..Forty Years Ago..

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, April 20, 1867.—Eight Hours on the Railroads.—It is understood that the directors of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company have decided to inform the men in their employ that after the first of May any of them choosing to do so can restrict their hours of labor to eight, a proportional reduction in wages being made therefor. It is expected that a notification to the same effect will be issued on other roads centering in Chicago.

Fat Mileage.—An exchange suggests that unless the mileage system is changed, it will be a very fat thing to secure an election as delegate from the new territory acquired from Russia. The mileage drawn by a delegate to Congress Washington territory is about $11,000 a session. The delegate from the territory of New Archangel would be entitled to $20,000, which, added to his salary, would make his compensation equal to that of the president of the United States. This would make politics lively among the Esquimaux.

Trial of the New Peat Mill.—The trial of the new peat mill, which has been in the course of construction for Messrs. Simeon Mills of Madison, and H. Richardson and G. B. Griffin of this city, at the Badger State Works for the last month, took place yesterday and resulted in a perfect success. A wagon load of peat weighing about one ton, was taken the same day from the bed, and used at the trial, and was put through the mill in ten minutes, grinding it to a fine pulp, thoroughly preparing it for drying, without further manufacture. Several gentlemen were present, among them owners of the Leavitt and Rae mills, who expressed themselves satisfied that it would eventually supersede all other mills now in use for grinding peat, on account of the simplicity of its construction and the rapidity and certainty with which it does its work. One other important feature should be mentioned and that is the cost would be from $300 to $400, whereas other machines of much less capacity cost from $600 to $3,000. A public trial of this machine will take place at the Badger State Works in this city at 12 o'clock noon on Wednesday, the 24th inst., and all persons interested in peat are invited to be present.

WAR TALK WAS BASELESS.

So Says Secretary Root of the Japanese Controversy.

Washington, April 20.—That there was never at any time any danger of war between the United States and Japan, growing out of the recent controversy regarding the segregation of the Japanese school children in the public schools in San Francisco, was made clear by Secretary Root in an address on "The Real Question Under the Japanese Treaty and the San Francisco School Board Resolution," at the first annual meeting of the American Society of International Law, which convened here Friday for a two days' session. The question of state rights, Secretary Root declared, was not involved.

Much of the afternoon session was devoted to a discussion of the so-called Drago doctrine, which former Secretary of State John W. Foster declared was originated by Alexander Hamilton more than a hundred years ago.

Half a Million for Ohio Churches. Cleveland, O., April 20.—Rev. Thomas A. King, pastor of the New Jerusalem church, stated Friday night that he had received information from the administrators of the estate of Sarah Ropes, who died recently in Salem, Mass., that by her will a bequest of $500,000 had been made to the Swedenborgian churches and institutions in Ohio.

NEW CRATERS FORMED

Repeated Earthquake Shocks Accompany the Eruptions—Seismic Disturbances in Philippines and South Carolina.

Lima, April 20.—The volcano Puyehue in the province of Valdivia, Chile, is yet in active eruption, and new craters have opened. The losses in the neighboring country are enormous, and the inhabitants are panic-stricken. Showers of hot ashes are falling and there are continued earthquake shocks accompanied by subterranean explosions.

Absolute darkness would prevail but for the light from several fires over an extent of six miles.

A great number of cattle have been killed near Lake Ranco. Several brooks which furnished drinking water for the people have dried up.

Quakes Shake Island of Luzon.

Manila, P. I., April 20.—Earthquake shocks were felt here at intervals for three hours early Friday morning. Three of the shocks were severe, but the majority were very slight. Reports received here from the southern part of the island of Luzon announce that severe earthquakes were felt at Nueva Caceres, Camarines province, and at Tayabas, 62 miles southeast of Manila. Buildings were destroyed in both places but no loss of life has been reported. Communication with the two cities mentioned is affected.

A tremor was experienced at Manila with intermittent shocks for three hours this morning. Three of the shocks were severe, but the majority of the others were scarcely perceptible.

Tremor at Charleston, S. C.

Charleston, S. C., April 20.—A slight earthquake shock was felt in Charleston and Summerville at 3:25 o'clock Friday morning. In the latter place it was said that dishes rattled and ornaments were knocked from the mantels. In Charleston only a very few people knew of the shock until after breakfast. From various points in the city people reported, having been awakened by a rumble followed by three slight wave movements. It lasted about eight seconds and was apparently from southeast to northwest.

Earth Shock in Algeria.

Strange Storm on Atlantic.

New York, April 20.—From midnight until five o'clock Wednesday morning the steamer La Provence, which arrived in port Friday night, passed through a storm which, the officers of the ship say, has rarely been exceeded in violence on the Atlantic.

The barometer fell rapidly, the air was so full of electricity that the compass was useless, and then huge seas began to break over the decks, though no rain fell. Capt. Alix thinks the strange storm was the result of the same forces which caused the earthquake shocks in Mexico.
